Street Jesus News:

Welcome to the December edition of our e-news.

As we approach Advent, looking forward in anticipation to celebrating the arrival of the Christ child we may indulge in many traditions that have built up over the years. My wife likes to keep to the tradition of mixing the Christmas pudding and the Christmas cake on stir up Sunday. Its interesting that this phrase was first instituted in the Book of common prayer and relates to the stirring up of the spirit at this time. Many people like to practice the Nativity fast which was first declared at the Council of Tours in 567 with the Christmas feast being its culmination.

We all know that the season of Advent is closely related to the nativity but it also looks forward to Christs second coming and the coming of the holy spirit into our lives personally. Most of us will have been involved in the lighting of candles in church in the run up to Christmas. The tradition of lighting candles on the Advent wreath started in Germany in the 19th century and as we light them all these years later we remember the patriarchs, prophets, John the Baptist and the annunciation and ultimately we light the candle that depicts Christ the light of the world on Christmas eve.

Many other customs also reflect Jesus. The old practice of hanging the greens, the garlands of holly and the Christmas tree signify both the crown of thorns and the 'evergreen' nature of the spiritual life in Christ. The tradition of the advent calendar also has its origins in the German Lutheran church. So as we move into advent and whether we practice these customs or not may we all reflect that God came into the world in the shape of a baby in very humble circumstances to reconcile us to him. Emmanuel -GOD WITH US. May God be with us all this Christmas.

Our facebook page often throws up some interesting discussions. Different expressions of theology can be quite contentious and increasingly as we see society becoming socially more liberal, so is church theology. An article by Matthew Paris in the times recently caused quite a stir. "Anglicanism was never about God" In the article Matthew picks up on Justin Welbys admission that the Church has failed to attract the young via its evangelistic mission programme. The average age of a church worshipper is 61 and rising and the numbers worshipping in Church each Sunday is in decline. We do need to be

Street Jesus News:

Careful though when using these figures as much church attendance is by other denominations and Church increasingly takes place during the week. The Pentecostal church for instance is growing. Aside from this there is a growing home church movement that is not involved in traditional structures. We remember that the early church was essentially a network of home churches. There is a great need for spirituality in our country which presents us with a great opportunity. Matthew attends church regularly, he prays but not sure who to. Scripture is rich and inspiring but merely as a literary work. He enjoys the liturgy ritual and atmosphere of church and its beauty and sense of peace. He views Jesus as a great moral teacher and example of how to live. He seems to reject the supernatural aspects and the work of the holy spirit in people's lives and that the evangelical mission to share the gospel is pointless. The article was depressing in that it limited our faith to the cultural level but we know from our experience in ministry that the holy spirit transforms and renews many who have been living very desperate lives. It may be that the cultural mores are so strong, that they appeal naturally to our individual desires rather than what appears to be a strict set of rules. Cultural Christianity may be a guide and help us to live better lives but this is nothing compared to having a relationship with the living God, nothing compared to the inner abundant life that only he can bring. Even when we don't seem to make headway in sharing the gospel our calling is to share it anyway in thought word and deed. We remember the parable of the sower in Matthew 13.

We were recently invited to do a talk at Charsfield Baptist church where we received a very warm welcome. It was nice to be able to give a fuller account of the Street Jesus work and not to have such a time restraint. We were able to talk about the Street Jesus van more fully and the opportunities we have had through it to share Jesus.

The day after the talk we had one such experience where a young man was gently teasing me about how much I got paid to drive around in the Jesus van. He told me that he studied Christianity when at school but felt he had done his time inferring that he had grown up now and saw through it. He had donated to the repair of the church roof or was it to the Bishops £100,000 + salary which he had recently read about. He hadn't of course but was making the point that he saw the giving of money as an obligation but for what purpose? As much of what he was saying was tongue in cheek he was expressing a common objection to the organised church, namely the unwise use of money. We moved on though to talk about spiritual riches and grace and love and forgiveness and yes the damage that sin does where he was very keen to talk about political corruption and the recent sleaze allegations around Boris Johnson but less about our own individual flaws. For him Sin was mainly for the rich and powerful

I think we could have talked all day but both he and I had to get on with our work. That's the frustration of sharing Jesus, other things invariably get in the way.

We will however be sharing the gospel with people at the Wickham Market Christmas market on the hill on December 4th I wonder who God will place before us, to make him known. Would be good to see you there Gods Blessings Graham .

Life in the country isn't going as Issy Smugge planned it. However, the woman Gorgeous Home magazine once called 'Britain's Most Relatable Mum Designer' is nothing if not resilient! With an unexpected baby on the way, a good-for-nothing husband and a mother who never seemed to care but now needs caring for, her hands are full. Her venal agent and creative socials guru keep work fizzing, but how will she cope with the mysterious village snitch and poisonous gossip columnist Lavinia Harcourt? Discovering others' problems can be far worse than her own, she confronts bizarre church sub-culture to slay every dragon they encounter. It also contains real-world examples of encounters with spiritual darkness, demonstrating examples of how the light can be explored and faith gradually found

Bible reading

Dear brothers and sisters, not many of you should become teachers in the church, for we who teach will be judged more strictly. Indeed we all make many mistakes. For if we could control our tongues we would be perfect and control ourselves in every other way. We can make a horse go wherever we want by means of a small bit in its mouth. And a small rudder makes a huge ship turn wherever the pilot chooses to go, even though the winds are strong. In the same way the tongue is a small thing that makes grand speeches. But a tiny spark can set a great forest on fire. It is a whole world of wickedness corrupting your entire body. It can set your whole life on fire, for it is set on fire by hell itself. People can tame all sorts of animals, birds, reptiles and fish but no one can tame the tongue. It is restless and evil and full of deadly poison. Sometimes it praises our Lord and Father and sometimes it curses those who have been made in the image of God, so blessings and cursing come out of the same mouth. Surely brothers and sisters this is not right. Does a spring of water bubble out from both fresh water and bitter water? Does a fig tree produce olives or a grapevine produce figs? No, you cannot draw fresh water from a salty spring. If you are wise and understand God's ways then prove it by living an honourable life, doing good works that come from wisdom. But if you are bitterly jealous and there is selfish ambition in your heart, don't cover up the truth with boasting and lying. For jealousy and selfishness are not God's types of wisdom. Such things are earthly, unspiritual and demonic. For wherever there is jealousy and selfish ambition, there you will find disorder and evil of every kind. But the wisdom from above is first of all pure, it is peace-loving and gentle at all times, willing to yield to others. It is full of mercy and good deeds. It shows no favouritism and is always sincere. Those who are peacemakers will plant seeds of peace and reap a harvest of righteousness. James 3: 1-18
